

A TV Fight

It was Friday afternoon. Ricky watched TV after school. He watched his favourite cartoon 'Super Cat'. Ricky felt excited. He had a big smile on his face. He grinned from ear to ear.

After a while, his sister came home from school. She wanted to watch TV. She liked to watch sports programmes. She wanted to watch a basketball match because it was exciting. His sister asked, 'Can you give the remote control to me?'

Then, Ricky gave the remote control to her. His sister changed the channel. Ricky said, 'I hate watching basketball matches. Can you change the channel?' Then his sister said, 'No, I like watching basketball matches.' They argued with each other and fought for the remote control. They both got angry. Their faces turned red.

Their little sister heard them fighting so she came into the living room. She said, 'Stop fighting! Let's play together in the garden.' When they were playing in the garden, Ricky and his sister learnt that spending time with their little sister was more important than watching TV. They had a lot of fun.

P.4A Lam Tsz Yiu, Josie