

I Love You, Grandpa!

John's grandpa lived in an old people's home. John's family visited Grandpa and took care of him. It was because Grandpa was weak and old. He was so old that he had wrinkles and his hands were very dry. Mum cooked and fed him some porridge. John, on the other hand, was very bored and wanted to go home.

One Saturday, John had enough of it and said angrily, 'I don't want to visit Grandpa today! It's boring and too long! I want to go cycling with my friends! At least it is more interesting than visiting Grandpa!'

After that disrespected line, Mum took out the family photo album and said, 'John, do you remember the time when you were little?' John replied, 'No, I don't.'

When he saw the photos, he was filled with regret. Mum said, 'You couldn't get dressed or comb your hair by yourself so Grandpa helped you. Don't you feel guilty?' John said, 'Let's just go to the old people's home now.' Mum said, 'Okay, but be nice.'

In the end, when John went there, he saw Grandpa and said, 'I love you, Grandpa!' And he hugged him. John learnt that he should love his grandparents.
